

<Output of Task 3 with knife image input at 0 degree angle>

1. I would quickly pull the hand away, with a sharp intake of breath, to avoid harm.
2. I would quickly withdraw my hand with a mix of surprise and fear, ensuring my safety from the blade.
3. I would quickly retract my hand, feeling a mix of surprise and fear, ensuring my fingers are safe.
4. I would quickly retract the hand with a startled reaction to avoid the danger of being "cut" by the knife.
5. I would quickly pull the hand away with a sharp motion, a mix of surprise and urgency on my face.

<Output of Task 3 with knife image input at 90 degree angle>

1. I would carefully move the hand away from the scissors to avoid any potential harm, feeling a sense of urgency to prevent damage.
2. I would carefully pick up the scissors with a determined expression, preparing to cut something precisely.
3. I would carefully move the hand away from the scissors to avoid any potential harm, feeling cautious and attentive to safety.
4. I would carefully move the hand away from the scissors to avoid any potential harm, looking cautious and attentive.
5. I would carefully move the hand away from the scissors, showing concern for safety.

<Output of Task 3 with cleaning tool image input at 0 degree angle>

1. I will move the duster back and forth with a focused expression, intent on cleaning the area thoroughly.
2. I gently move the hand upwards to feel the texture of the fluffy object with a sense of curiosity and playfulness.
3. I will move the duster back and forth with a focused expression, cleaning the area thoroughly.
4. I will gently shake the fluffy object with a sense of curiosity to see what it does or feels like.
5. I will grasp the duster firmly with a sense of determination and start dusting the area, moving my hand back and forth.

<Output of Task 3 with cleaning tool image input at 90 degree angle>

1. I will grasp the duster firmly with a sense of determination and start cleaning the dusty surface with brisk, sweeping motions.
2. I will grasp the duster firmly and begin dusting the surfaces with a sense of determination to clean the area.
3. I will gently grasp the turquoise object with a sense of curiosity and inspect it closely.
4. I will grasp the blue object firmly, with a sense of determination, and proceed to dust the area with swift, back-and-forth motions.
5. I will grasp the duster handle firmly, with a sense of determination, and begin dusting the surfaces around me.

